Background and invitation to attend

SimTecT 2007, the Australasian region's premier simulation conference and trade exhibition, will offer a one-day symposium for the Mining and Construction Industries on Monday 4 June at the Brisbane Convention Centre.

Hosted by Queensland's Mining Industry Skills Centre, and Construction Training Centre, the Symposium is a major strategy for introducing simulation to a range of challenges facing the industries including:

- Safety enhancement
- Skills shortfall
- Skills development
- Drive for efficiency
- Integrating simulators into an organisation

Aims

The Symposium will:

- Demonstrate the benefits of using simulators for training in other industries, and the mining / construction industry
- Assist participants to see how these benefits applying to their organisations
- Describe the pitfalls and lessons learnt
- Facilitate the establishment of a stakeholder group to further this industry development

Who should attend

Training and General Managers, Curriculum developers, training providers, engineers.

Speakers

A range of keynote speakers from the mining / construction, aviation, defence, health and railway industries have been invited.

Program

The program includes:

- Plenary sessions
- Short interactive workshop groups
- Attendance at the SimTecT Welcome Reception

Delegates are also able to attend further days of the SimTecT Conference (4-7 June), which includes a number of workshops designed for the mining / construction industry on Tuesday 5 June.

Format

Morning / afternoon teas, lunch and the SimTecT Welcome Reception will be held in the SimTecT Exhibition area – enabling delegates to view the latest simulation technologies and practices.
